5 ways to kick-start healthy habits

Bonus: 3-day kick-start meal plan

1. Stay active

Studies have found that regular exercise can cut stress, elevate and stabilize mood, improve sleep, and boost self-esteem. Making time to move can also help you stay motivated to make healthy choices.

2. Get enough sleep

Poor sleep has been linked to eating more foods high in calories, fats, and carbs. This can lead to health problems such as increased stress, blood pressure, and blood sugar. Set a consistent sleep and wake time each day to ensure at least 7-9 hours a night.

3. Continue monitoring

Knowing your numbers helps you stay accountable. This can mean stepping on the scale, measuring your blood sugar, or taking your blood pressure. Don't get discouraged if you aren't where you want to be at any point. Use these results as a gauge to help you stay focused on making mindful choices.

4. Plan, shop, and prep healthy meals

Take time each week to set yourself up for well-balanced meals. Wash, cut, and store produce in containers right after grocery shopping. Portion out, bag, and sort lunch foods for the week. Prepare larger meals so you have leftovers.

5. Set mini SMART goals

SMART stands for Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Reasonable, and Timely. An example of a SMART goal is "I will power walk on my lunch break for 20 minutes, 4 days out of the week."
